Honorees Humbled, Moved by Accolades

American Hellenic Institute Founder Eugene T. Rossides, accepted the first ever AHI Hellenic Heritage Lifetime Achievement Award. For this special honor, AHI commissioned a tribute video to salute the life work of Gene Rossides. In acceptance, Rossides expressed his appreciation to his family and colleagues at AHI. He also provided the historical context that led to the founding of AHI: “It was July 22nd, 1974, two days after Turkey had invaded Cyprus with the illegal use of U.S. arms. I accompanied President Makarios of Cyprus to the State Department where he met with Henry Kissinger, the Secretary. I met with Bob McCleskey, the deputy to Kissinger, and I said to Bob, whom I knew, ‘Bob, you got to stop the arms to Turkey because the law is clear that if anyone uses our arms for offensive purposes—the aid to arms must cease immediately.’ It was not a question of Presidential discretion; it was mandatory. Bob McCleskey answered that they would look into it. When he said that I knew that they would do nothing and I decided at that point to form an organization which I did. Eight days later we incorporated the American Hellenic Institute, which led the effort for the rule of law embargo against Turkey which was successful during that ’74 year...”

Accepting the AHI Hellenic Heritage National Public Service Award on behalf of the late Ted G. Spyropoulos was his wife, Erika, and daughter, Mariyana. Spyropoulos was honored for his faithful dedication to Hellenic ideals and values and for a lifetime of generosity to the community. In acceptance, his daughter, Mariyana, stated, “My family and I would like to offer our warm thanks to the American Hellenic Institute, Mr. Rossides, Mr. Larigakis, for today’s tribute to my father, Theodore Spyropoulos. We thank you for honoring his memory...It’s difficult to sum up a life in a work of a few minutes. He embodied what many people of distinction and honor represent in our community and in our society: country, his fellow man, his work, and his family...Let the life of Theodore Spyropoulos and the many who came before him and will follow him to teach us through their lives that humanity is our business.”

In addition, Ted’s wife, Erika, stated, “It is a great honor for me to accept this award for my beloved late husband.” She described her late husband as “generous and patriotic,” “tireless with devotion to Hellenism and education,” and “possessed with the great Hellenic value admired in a human being, philotimo.”

In acceptance of the AHI Hellenic Heritage Achievement Award for his extraordinary accomplishments in the field of advertising and visual arts, George Lois, remarked that even from a very young age, five, he knew, “that being Greek was a gift from the gods.” Lois described his life’s work as it pertained to helping Greece. His saddest, yet proudest project was a protest campaign designed to provoke and raise money to help political prisoners and their families during the horrendous seven-year Junta. Lois also helped the Greek National Tourist Organization in 1985 when tourism suffered following the skyjacking and hostage-taking crisis at the Athens Airport. The campaign, “I am going home to Greece” was born.

In closing, Lois thanked AHI on its “glorious 40th anniversary,” and “for the sweet honor which I dedicate to all our rested forefathers...”

Aris Melissaratos received the AHI Hellenic Heritage National Public Service Award for his philanthropic commitment to educational and charitable endeavors in the greater Baltimore/Washington area. He is one of the country’s most respected business leaders with a near 40-year career in leadership roles for companies and institutions such as General Electric and Johns Hopkins University as well as a public servant, serving as a cabinet secretary for the state of Maryland.

In acceptance, Melissaratos also spoke of the importance of Greece as “the birthplace of everything, scientific and philosophical,” and he recounted how fortunate he has been to fulfill the American Dream after being born in communist Romania and eventually moving to post-civil war Greece where there was no opportunity. “I feel very fortunate, that I have been able to come to this country and live the American Dream like all the others that have gone before me,” he said. “This country [the United States] brings the best of what the Greeks—our forefathers— offered to the world...It’s this phenomenal mosaic of world’s cultures built on the foundation of the Greek civilization and knowledge that has made this country what it is.”

In conclusion, Anthony Quinn was posthumously awarded the AHI Hellenic Heritage Cultural Achievement Award on the 100th anniversary of his birth, in celebration of his iconic role as “Zorba the Greek,” and in recognition of his vast artistic talent. Katherine Quinn, wife of the late actor, accepted the award.

AHI SUBMITS TESTIMONY TO HOUSE APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEE

AHI submitted testimony to the House of Representatives Appropriations Subcommittee on State, Foreign Operations, and Related Programs on the Obama Administration's foreign aid proposals for FY2016 on March 23, 2015. In the best interests of the United States, AHI's testimony opposed: any military assistance the administration will request for Turkey until Turkey removes its troops and illegal Turkish settlers from Cyprus; aid the administration will request for the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM); and any reduction that might be introduced in the aid levels for the UN Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus. In addition, AHI's testimony presented the Confidence Building Measures (CBMs) that were proposed by the Republic of Cyprus prior to the suspension of settlement talks in the fall of 2014 as an example of where United States foreign assistance could be helpful should the talks resume in 2015.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Washington Times Publishes AHI's Letter on Turkey's Latest Incursion on Cyprus

The Washington Times published AHI's letter to the editor,

"Turkey's Cyprus incursion nothing new," January 20, 2015 and in its print version, January 21, 2015. AHI President Nick Larigakis wrote the letter in response to a January 11, 2015 "Newsmaker Interview" by Guy Taylor titled, "Cypriot union threatened by dispute over oil and gas rights." Larigakis calls the interview with Turkish Cypriot negotiator Mr. Ergun Olgun a public relations ploy to avert attention away from Turkey's latest violation of international law—its "gunboat diplomacy" in the eastern Mediterranean and incursion into Cyprus' Economic Exclusive Zone (EEZ). Larigakis sets the record straight on Cyprus' sovereign rights, especially with regard to exploring for energy resources within its EEZ, and on the position of the Cypriot government with regard to potential sharing of revenue from energy finds.

AHI Submits Letter to The Economist

AHI submitted a letter to the editor of The Economist, March 2, 2015. The letter, authored by AHI President Nick Larigakis, rebutted a February 28, 2015 article, "A semi-guided missile," that cast doubt on Greece's important role as a NATO ally. Larigakis wrote, "To be clear, despite Greece's economic woes, Greece is only one of four NATO countries to maintain the 2% minimum standard for military expenditures at 2.3%." He added the invaluable role of NSA Souda Bay, Crete, in facilitating NATO and U.S. missions in addition to the importance of NATO Maritime Interdiction Operational Training Center (NMIOTC) and NATO Missile Firing Installation (NAMFI), which are both located on Crete. Furthermore, Larigakis cites Greece's value to security interests in the Mediterranean due to emerging threats caused by greater access to the Mediterranean by ISIS, which presence eerily was felt recently on Libya's Mediterranean coast.

AHI President Rebutts Turkish Cypriot's Blog Post

AHI President Nick Larigakis submitted a rebuttal to a guest commentary authored by Mr. Mehmet Mustafaoglu that was published May 1, 2015 in the online version of The Hill, a newspaper with a focus on the U.S. Congress. Mr. Mustafaoglu's commentary, "Cyprus: The volatile and oddly forgotten frozen conflict" appeared in the The Hill's Congress Blog, a forum for lawmakers and policy professionals. In response to the op-ed, Larigakis set the record straight on Turkey's illegal invasion of Cyprus on July 20, 1974, the recent suspension of settlement talks due to Turkey's incursion of the Republic of Cyprus' Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ), and Mr. Mustafaoglu's ludicrous assertion that Turkish troops are needed on Cyprus. For the latter, Larigakis cites statements made by the former chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, U.S. Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen (R-FL) and the committee's current chairman, U.S. Rep. Ed Royce (R-CA) that call for the withdrawal of Turkish troops from Cyprus. Although Larigakis' submission was not published, a submission titled, "Turkey is the bad actor on Cyprus," by Hellenic Caucus Co-chair U.S. Rep. Gus Bilirakis' (R-FL) was published on May 6, 2015.

Arise TV, an emerging 24-hour news channel with hubs in London and New York, interviewed President Larigakis in March about the new government in Greece and the country’s economy. Larigakis made it a point to address why Greece maintains 2.3% of its GDP on military expenditures, a question presented to a previous interviewee who did not see why Greece needed to do so. Larigakis informed the journalist that Greece maintains this level of military spending to defend and safeguard its sovereign territory in the Aegean from Turkey’s violation of Greece’s air-space and territorial waters.

“As the tourism season is upon us, the importance of the industry to Greece cannot be underscored enough, especially as Greece battles through an economic crisis,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said.

As part of his presentation, Ananiades touched upon Greece’s affordability as a tourist destination, the myths of the impact of the civil disobedience upon tourism, and he examined Greece’s appeal as a business conference destination, including its ability to accommodate large numbers of delegates. He also discussed ways in which the Greek American community and Greek American organizations can help to increase tourism to Greece.

AHI Welcomes WSJ Opinion Piece

AHI welcomes an opinion piece published February 23, 2015 in The Wall Street Journal titled, “When Islamic State Starts Hitting Ships.” Seth Cropsey, director, Center for American Seapower, Hudson Institute, and former deputy undersecretary of the Navy, authored the piece which raises concern about greater access to the Mediterranean by the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) and the increased risk of military conflict it poses in central and eastern Mediterranean. For deterrence to the potential for increased attacks by ISIS, Cropsey touts the United States’ agreement with Greece as demonstrated through US NSA Souda Bay at Crete as the “focal point for America’s Mediterranean naval forces”

AHI thanks President Barack Obama for issuing a Presidential Proclamation for Greek Independence Day: A National Day of Celebration of Greek and American Democracy, 2015 and congratulates the president for acknowledging the historical bonds between the United States and Greece as well as expressing support for Greece, “our friend and NATO ally.”

Indiana Senator Lifts Hold on Greek Independence Day Resolution; AHI Commends Community’s Advocacy

AHI is pleased that U.S. Sen. Dan Coats (R-IN) lifted his hold on S.Res.105, a resolution recognizing the 194th anniversary of the independence of Greece and celebrating democracy in Greece and the United States, after receiving a letter of clarification from Ambassador of Greece to the United States Christos Panagopoulos. The senator had placed a hold on the resolution based upon comments made by Greece’s Minister of Defense Panos Kammenos. After Senator Coats lifted his hold, the resolution, which was sponsored by U.S. Sen. Robert Menendez (D-NJ), passed by unanimous consent on March 27, 2015 with 28 co-sponsors.

“We congratulate the entire Greek American community for coming together to advance the resolution,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. Larigakis commended the Coordinated Effort of Hellenes (CEH), and its executive director, Mike Manatos, for bringing the legislative hold to the community’s attention; AHEPA, and its executive director, Basil Mossaidis, for its grass-roots mobilization; and the Hellenic American Leadership Council, and its executive director, Endy Zemenides, for creating awareness through its social media network.

AHI had sent a letter to Senator Coats expressing disappointment that the senator had placed a hold on the resolution.

AHI Releases Annual Policy Statements; Positions Advocate for the Rule of Law

AHI announced the release of its updated Policy Statements today. The policy statements discuss issues affecting the Greek American community as they pertain to United States relations with Greece, Cyprus, and Turkey. In addition, the statements include in its appendices AHI’s fact sheet detailing Greece’s contributions to United States interests in the eastern Mediterranean and to NATO and other resources, including full-length statements from government officials. “We strongly urge everyone to utilize the policy statements to their full potential, educating policymakers and creating awareness of the issues to the community at-large,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “The positions presented advocate for the application of the rule of law and are in the best interests of the United States. We also sincerely thank the large number of organizations that have endorsed the policy statements.”

AHI Commends Pope Francis’ Recognition of Armenian Genocide

AHI commends Pope Francis for calling the slaughter of Armenians by Ottoman Turks the first genocide of the 20th century during Mass held April 12, 2015. According to The New York Times, “Francis said it was a duty of everyone not to forget the ‘senseless slaughter’ of an estimated 1.5 million Armenians by the Ottoman Turks from 1915 to 1923.” “We commend Pope Francis for demonstrating leadership by publically recognizing the Armenian Genocide as genocide,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “We call on the United States government to follow the pope’s lead and to describe and recognize the killing of 1.5 Armenians by the Ottoman Turks as genocide.”

Monograph Published by Hudson Institute Demonstrates Importance of Eastern Mediterranean

AHI welcomes a monograph published by the Hudson Institute titled, “U.S. Policy and the Strategic Relationship of Greece, Cyprus, and Israel: Power Shifts in the Eastern Mediterranean” by Seth Cropsey, director, Center for American Seapower. The monograph is the culmination of Hudson Institute’s work on a project centered on research conducted for the past year and a half about security in the eastern Mediterranean, specifically energy security. “We welcome the monograph published by the Hudson Institute and applaud the organization for its very thorough research and overall body of work,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “The monograph must be distributed broadly as it confirms and reinforces just how important the eastern Mediterranean region has become for United States interests. AHI is proud to have been a strong supporter of the Hudson Institute’s work on the project from the beginning.”

AHI Welcomes Bipartisan Policy Center’s Report on Turkey as Undependable Ally

AHI welcomes a report published April 2015 by the Bipartisan Policy Center’s Turkey Task Force titled, “Turkey: An Increasing- ly Undependable Ally.” The BPC’s Turkey Task Force is co-chaired by Ambassador Morton Abramowitz, former U.S. ambassador to Turkey; and Ambassador Eric Edelman, former U.S. ambassador to Turkey.

“We welcome the report published by the Bipartisan Policy Center’s Turkey Task Force,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “It draws much-needed added attention and facts to a theme that we have been communicating in Washington via our policy statements and that is Turkey’s unreliability as an ally of the United States. However, we are disappointed the report lacks focus on core issues of the Greek American community, especially with regard to Turkey’s illegal invasion and subsequent forty-year occupation of the Republic of Cyprus.”

One of the report’s recommendations is to look to other nations to play important roles as regional partners. “Unfortunately, the Task Force failed to recognize Greece or Cyprus as nations that can play important regional roles,” Larigakis said. “Greece is a loyal and dependable NATO ally and the relationship between the United States and Cyprus received a significant boost following Vice President Biden’s historic visit there a year ago.”

According to the report’s executive summary, since the BPC Turkey Task Force’s original report in 2013, “the rift between Washington and Ankara has only widened.” This rift is not only widening because of Turkey’s wayward foreign policy that runs opposite to the United States, but the rift is also becoming larger due to Turkey’s worrisome domestic policies that include the “dismantling of Turkey’s democratic institutions.”
